

Law as Dialectical: Suarez's Legal Theory in Context

Elisabeth Kincaid

Director, Institute for Faith and Learning

Associate Professor of Ethics, Faith & Culture, Truett Theological Seminary

Affiliate Professor of Management, Hankamer School of Business

In this chapter, I argue that Suarez views law as a tool to challenge and limit absolutism, not enforce it. When understood correctly, law's promotion of justice and the common good, as understood by a community and then integrated into law through reception, provide an important resource for forming the virtuous community.